

Published by Japan Camera Hunter. May 2015

The Bristol Estate On the Steepest Hill by Alexis Maryon

In fact, here is another one of the book from Fistful. This time it is a documentary style flip book covering the lives of the people on the Bristol Estate in Brighton (I know, a bit confusing, but there you go).

This is a gritty look at the decline of the housing estate in Britain's 'age of austerity', for the first few pages it seems to be all about the almost ghostlike images of the estate, but as you go through the book it also becomes about the people living within the estate.

There is a sense of joy, community and perseverance, despite what some modern media outlets would have people believe *cough*dailymail*cough*. The people show pride in their community and this is a really well put together project. Alexis really put the time in with the community, and it shows in this great piece of work.

Again, this was from fistfulofbooks.com. Grab yourself a copy, you will not regret it.